Specifically, of Pennsylvania's 28,865,531 acres, 15,655,343 are farm lands, and of these latter, 9,403,000 are improved. Improved farm acreage includes land which already is under cultivation or which is capable of being put into immediate cultivation.

Thirty-eight of the state's 67 counties are above the state-wide average of 55.3 per cent total land in farms. Greene county ranks highest, its proportion being 91.8 per cent. SUIT INVOLVING 2 CARS, WAGON HEARD BY JURY

The first case to go on trial in the January session of the court of common pleas in Adams county court was being heard today before a jury of seven women and five men. Court attaches said they believed it was the first jury ever drawn in which a majority of the members were women.

The case on trial is the damage action by W. H. Breighner, 76, New Oxford, against Quincy W. Hershey, York Springs, and G. Raymond Sauble, Taneytown, Maryland. It resulted from a double collision involving Breighner's wagon, Hershey's car and a truck owned by Sauble on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg highway a short distance north of Shriver's crossroads on October 11, 1938.

Four attorneys are trying the case. J. Francis Yake, Jr., Esq., represents Mr. Breighner; John P. Rutt, Esq., represents Mr. Sauble and Franklin R. Bigham and Edgar K. Markley, Esqs., are counsel for Mr. Hershey.

Describe Accident
 Mr. Breighner gave the jury its first account of the accident. He said he was enroute from New Oxford to his Butler township farm in the light wagon drawn by one horse when his wagon was struck from the rear by the Hershey car. Mr. Breighner was thrown to the highway and later was taken to his home by Jacob Herter, Gettysburg, where the injured man was confined to bed for some time.

The wagon was damaged by the collision, witnesses said. The horse was unhurt, but ran off, dragging the front section of the wagon. The animal was found on the evening of the day of the accident in a woods near the scene.

Mr. Hershey told the court and jury that he had been driving north and had passed the north-bound "sauble truck" at a speed of about 50 miles an hour. He reduced his speed to about six or eight miles an hour as he drew near the wagon because a car coming from the opposite direction, prevented his passing, he said. As he was about to begin the pass, he related, his car was struck from the rear by the Sauble truck and shoved forward against the wagon.

Tells of Injuries
 As court recessed at noon today defense attorneys moved for a directed non-suit by the court against Mr. Breighner but after consultation in judicial chambers, the trial proceeded when court re-convened at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Breighner returned to the stand for further testimony about his leg, hip and back injuries and then his son, Charles, was called to the stand.

The members of the jury accepted in the case follow: Mrs. Carrie Bream, Gardeners; J. Howard Brown, Gettysburg R. 3; Lawrence Deatrick, Gettysburg R. 4; Miss Anna Gilliland, Carlisle street; Merrell Kilinger, Fairfield; Dennis R. Kline, New Oxford R. D.; Mrs. Mary M. Motter, Mt. Joy township; Miss Ruth Myers, Biglerville R. 1; Mrs. Eleanor Smith, Fairfield R. D.; Mrs. Edna Snyder, Littlestown R. 3; Stanton Thomas, Biglerville, and Mrs. Bessie Widder, Gettysburg.

4 More Civil Suits
 Judge W. C. Sheely was on the bench. By his side were Associate Judges John C. Wible and A. Dale Knouse.

Today's session was the first for Prothonotary Lee M. Hartman since he took office early this month. He was assisted by his predecessor, C. Arthur Brame, now chief clerk to the commissioners.

Four other civil suits remain for trial at this session. The defendant in each case is T. Earl Culp, Jr., of Hanover, and it has been announced that the cases will be tried by a single jury. Selection of that jury is slated for late this afternoon.

BRITAIN REPORTS SINKING U-BOAT

A picture of "prodigious results" produced by Britain's war preparations was drawn today by Prime Minister Chamberlain who announced a German submarine was sunk when it attempted to attack a naval convoy Tuesday.

Discussing the nation's war effort which has brought more than 1,250,000 men under arms, Chamberlain hastened to assure the United States and Japan that Britain was anxious to avoid friction with them and other neutrals which might grow out of the war.

British aircraft construction is seven times greater than it was four years ago, he said at a national defense committee luncheon. Later in the house of commons Chamberlain announced that the admiralty Thursday would take over control of all British merchant shipbuilding and repairs during the war.

Merchants to Offer Bargains Here During Dollar Days

Weeks of preparation by Gettysburg stores and shops have been aimed at making Friday and Saturday—Gettysburg Community Dollar Days—the greatest bargain season in the history of the event in Gettysburg and this trading area.

Arrangements have been proceeding quietly for a long time and now the business places and the entire community is keyed to the liveliest tempo ever set by approaching Dollar Days. Gettysburg merchants have concentrated their efforts to make their bargains for Friday and Saturday outstanding in their attractiveness and so unusual as to furnish "the surprise of their lives" for Adams county shoppers and those who will be drawn here from nearby communities.

According to advertising copy already sent to the composing room of The Gettysburg Times for the special Dollar Day edition to be issued Thursday, these community Dollar Days promise to eclipse all other promotion events of the kind ever attempted here.

Some Bargains Listed
 Gettysburg's progressive merchants have agreed to offer the special prices for Friday and Saturday only. After Saturday, prices return to regular levels.

A "mystery shopper" sent by this newspaper into some of the stores that will take part in the two-day sales event discovered sample bargains to be offered to week-end shoppers. "For instance," he said as he spoke of the surprisingly attractive "bigs" to be made in the golden banner stores, "Shamrock sheets, $1.99 will cost only 84 cents, and

VETERAN LOCAL FIREMEN ELECT ZEIGLER HEAD

Members of the Gettysburg Veteran Firemen's association and their guests attended their third annual banquet, Tuesday evening, at Mrs. Smith's restaurant, with the retiring president, George A. McClellan, in charge. There were 40 present for the turkey dinner.

Early in the evening the veteran firemen elected officers for this year. Charles E. Zeigler was chosen as the new president; Maurice A. Miller as vice president, and James B. Aumen was re-elected as secretary treasurer.

New members added to the association Tuesday evening included James A. Aumen, Gettysburg fire chief; Arthur Buchler, Steven Smith, Murray Miller, Francis Stevens, Joseph E. Codori, C. J. Myers and Edward Anzenberger. The present membership is 48. Only firemen who have been members of the local company for 15 years or more are eligible to membership in the veterans' association.

There were remarks by the association's guests: Russell Baker, Oakmont, Pa., instructor of the firemen's schools being conducted in Adams county this winter, and Gettysburg's two assistant fire chiefs, Paul E. Oyler and Ralph L. Fissel. A number of the members spoke briefly.

Those members were barred by illness from attending the banquet: George B. Faber, William H. Kalbfleisch, S. E. Swope, E. A. Deatrick and Luther McDonnell.

The association adjourned after the banquet until the annual gathering to be held in January, 1941.

Adams county commissioners at a regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon gave tentative approval to the Adams county budget for 1940 as prepared by Chief Clerk C. Arthur Brame and directed that it be held at the court house for public inspection for a 30-day period after which final action will be taken.

Based on a continued tax rate of 4½ mills, for general county purposes, the budget follows fairly closely the 1939 budget and makes provision for estimated receipts and expenditures of $233,258.

On Thursday when the commissioners meet as the Adams County Institution board, Mr. Brame will submit a proposed budget for the county Institution district for tentative approval. It is reported to be drawn on the basis of a three-mill tax rate for institution district purposes. The 1939 rate for the institution district was three mills.

Prospects of Same Tax Rate
 If both budgets are adopted finally after a 30-day inspection period, the county's tax rate will remain the same in 1940 as it was last year.

The commissioners estimate that they will collect $52,492 from the real estate levy for general county purposes this year and about $3,109 from the levy on occupational assessments. The estimated current revenue which includes an expected $32,500 from delinquent taxes is set at $151,412.

The budget estimates that $4,500 will be collected for the county through the courts by fines and costs, while the commissioners anticipate payments of $38,000 from the state in liquid fuel tax monies. That estimate is $3,000 above the sum anticipated in 1939 because actual payments have shown an "upturn in revenue from that source."

Complete figures on 1939 expenditures are not yet available and will not be known exactly until the county auditors finish their work.

The cash balance with which the county opened 1940 is given at $84,346, approximately $5,500 above the balance at the opening of 1939.

$20,000 for Bridges
 Under estimated expenditures most appropriations follow closely the 1939 amounts. Expecting to paint the exterior of the court house and do other repair work there this year, the commissioners added $1,000 to the sum allowed for that work last year.

The 1940 budget sets aside $20,000 for bridge building this year and an equal sum for land damages involved in bridge or road building. Both sums are slightly above the 1939 figures.

A total of $9,000 is ear-marked for the retirement of bonds that will mature this year.

The commissioners have designated a total of $53,196 for the contingency fund, an increase of nearly $11,000 over the 1939 sum. All other appropriations vary only slightly or not at all from 1939 figures.

150 Attend Local President's Party

Approximately 150 persons attended the President's birthday party held Tuesday evening in the Hotel Gettysburg. Music and entertainment was furnished by Bud Codori's orchestra.

A final accounting of the money received from the affair has not been made, but members of the committee in charge said today that the Crippled Children's society of Adams county will receive a larger sum this year as its share of the proceeds than in any previous year the parties were held.

The Camp Fire Girls of Gettysburg collected $16 in their "March of Dimes" solicitation recently for the aid of crippled children in the nation.

Spirit of Co-operation

"They report that the attitude of Gettysburg business and professional people toward the future of the community is highly favorable. There is a fine spirit of co-operation and a definite desire on most everyone's part to do something to secure a greater yield from the assets that are naturally ours. The business and professional people definitely want to work together to the advantage of all."

Mr. Schnurman, after listening to the reports of the committeemen on Tuesday, told them that the co-operation they are receiving on every hand evidences the faith that Gettysburgians have in Gettysburg institutions.

"We in Gettysburg have allowed ourselves to be misled with the false notion that we can't work together," he exclaimed, "and we have just assumed that as being the truth without analyzing it. What is now taking place, and what you are experiencing, is the fact that our business and professional people realize that this is one of the best towns in the country."

Every Member to Participate

"We have done greater things, we have better stores and are better able to serve our own people and several hundred thousand annual visitors than any other town in the United States. Our guides are beyond question the best guide group in the world. We have every facility here to do a better job in every way than most any other community. We have a right to be proud of Gettysburg and Gettysburg institutions and now that we realize that, I think you can depend on unity and co-operative effort and can forget all the foolish notions that have been allowed to take hold in the minds of all of us."

At the meeting it was emphasized that every member of the new Chamber of Commerce will have the right to make his own selection for officers and directors and that the election is not by any means an open and shut proposition.

"Not only will nominations from the floor be acceptable," Mr. Schnurman said, "but they are wanted and every member will have the right to suggest names and otherwise exercise his full franchise at the organization meeting on February 14."

2-YEAR NAVAL PLAN APPROVED

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — The house naval committee tentatively approved today a two-year building program to cost approximately $655,000,000.

The revamped program, described by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) as "all the Navy can build in two years," would authorize construction of 21 additional warships, 22 auxiliary vessels and boost the Navy's minimum air strength to 4,500 planes.

When the fleet expansion program first was presented it called for eventual appropriation of 1,300,000,000 to provide for 77 warships and the same number of aircraft and auxiliaries.

SUIT INVOLVING 2 CARS, WAGON HEARD BY JURY

The first case to go on trial in the January session of the court of common pleas in Adams county court was being heard today before a jury of seven women and five men. Court attaches said they believed it was the first jury ever drawn in which a majority of the members were women.

The case on trial is the damage action by W. H. Breighner, 76, New Oxford, against Quincy W. Hershey, York Springs, and G. Raymond Sauble, Taneytown, Maryland. It resulted from a double collision involving Breighner's wagon. Hershey's car and a truck owned by Sauble on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg highway a short distance north of Schriver's crossroads on October 11, 1939.

Four attorneys are trying the case. J. Francis Yoke, Jr., Esq., represents Mr. Breighner; John P. Butt, Esq., represents Mr. Sauble and Franklin R. Bigham and Edgar K. Markley, Esqs., are counsel for Mr. Hershey.

Describe Accident

Mr. Breighner gave the jury its first account of the accident. He said he was enroute from New Oxford to his Butler township farm in the light wagon drawn by one horse when his wagon was struck from the rear by the Hershey car. Mr. Breighner was thrown to the highway and later was taken to his home by Jacob Heret, Gettysburg, where the injured man was confined to bed for some time.

The wagon was damaged by the collision, witnesses said. The horse was unhurt, but ran off, dragging the front section of the wagon. The animal was found on the evening of the day of the accident in a woods near the scene.

Mr. Hershey told the court and jury that he had been driving north and had passed the north-bound Sauble truck at a speed of about 50 miles an hour. He reduced his speed to about six or eight miles an hour as he drew near the wagon because a car coming from the opposite direction prevented his passing, he said. As he was about to begin the pass, he related, his car was struck from the rear by the Sauble truck and shoved forward against the wagon.

Tells of Injuries

As court recessed at noon today defense attorneys moved for a directed non-suit by the court against Mr. Breighner but after consultation in judicial chambers, the trial proceeded when court re-convened at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Breighner returned to the stand for further testimony about his leg, hip and back injuries and then his son, Charles, was called to the stand.

The members of the jury accepted in the case follow: Mrs. Carrie Bream, Gardners; J. Howard Brown, Gettysburg R. 3; Lawrence Deatrick, Gettysburg R. 4; Miss Anna Gilliland, Carlisle street; Merrell Kittinger, Fairfield; Dennis R. Kline, New Oxford R. D.; Mrs. Mary M. Motter, Mt. Joy township; Miss Ruth Myers, Biglerville R. 1; Mrs. Eleanor Smith, Fairfield R. D.; Mrs. Edna Snyder, Littlestown R. 2; Stanton Thomas, Biglerville, and Mrs. Bessie Wilder, Gettysburg.

4 More Civil Suits

Judge W. C. Sheely was on the bench. By his side were Associate Judges John C. Wible and A. Dale Knoke.

Today's session was the first for Prothonotary Lee M. Hartman since he took office early this month. He was assisted by his predecessor, C. Arthur Brame, now chief clerk to the commissioners.

Four other civil suits remain for trial at this session. The defendant in each case is T. Earl Culp, Jr., of Hanover, and it has been announced that the cases will be tried by a single jury. Selection of that jury is slated for late this afternoon.

BRITAIN REPORTS SINKING U-BOAT

(By The Associated Press)

A picture of "prodigious results" produced by Britain's war preparations was drawn today by Prime Minister Chamberlain who announced a German submarine was sunk when it attempted to attack a naval convoy Tuesday.

Discussing the nation's war effort which has brought more than 1,250,000 men under arms, Chamberlain hastened to assure the United States and Japan that Britain was anxious to avoid friction with them and other neutrals which might grow out of the war.

British aircraft construction is seven times greater than it was four years ago, he said at a national defense committee luncheon. Later in the house of commons Chamberlain announced that the admiralty Thursday would take over control of all British merchant shipbuilding and repairs during the war.

Merchants to Offer Bargains Here During Dollar Days

Weeks of preparation by Gettysburg stores and shops have been aimed at making Friday and Saturday—Gettysburg Community Dollar Days—the greatest bargain season in the history of the event in Gettysburg and this trading area.

Arrangements have been proceeding quietly for a long time and now the business places and the entire community is keyed to the liveliest tempo ever set by approaching Dollar Days. Gettysburg merchants have concentrated their efforts to make their bargains for Friday and Saturday outstanding in their attractiveness and so unusual as to furnish "the surprise of their lives" for Adams county shoppers and those who will be drawn here from nearby communities.

According to advertising copy already sent to the composing room of The Gettysburg Times for the special Dollar Day edition to be issued Thursday, these community Dollar Days promise to eclipse all other promotional events of the kind ever attempted here.

Some Bargains Listed

Gettysburg's progressive merchants have agreed to offer the special prices for Friday and Saturday only. After Saturday, prices return to regular levels.

A "mystery shopper" sent by this newspaper into some of the stores that will take part in the two-day sales event discovered sample bargains to be offered to week-end shoppers. "For instance," he said as he spoke of the surprisingly attractive "buys" to be made in the golden banner stores, "Shamrock sheets, 81x99 will cost only 84 cents, and

Members of the Gettysburg Veteran Firemen's association and their guests attended their third annual banquet, Tuesday evening, at Mrs. Smith's restaurant, with the retiring president, George A. McClellan, in charge. There were 40 present for the turkey dinner.

Early in the evening the veteran firemen elected officers for this year. Charles E. Zeigler was chosen as the new president; Maurice A. Miller as vice president, and James B. Aumen was re-elected as secretary treasurer.

New members added to the association Tuesday evening included James A. Aumen, Gettysburg fire chief; Arthur Buehler, Steven Smith, Murray Miller, Francis Stevens, Joseph E. Codori, C. J. Myers and Edward Anzenberger. The present membership is 46. Only firemen who have been members of the local company for 15 years or more are eligible to membership in the veterans' association.

There were remarks by the association's guests: Russell Baker, Oakmont, Pa., instructor of the firemen's schools being conducted in Adams county this winter, and Gettysburg's two assistant fire chiefs, Paul E. Oyler and Ralph L. Fissel. A number of the members spoke briefly.

Those members were barred by illness from attending the banquet: George B. Faber, William H. Kalbfleisch, S. E. Swope, E. A. Deatrick and Luther McDonnell.

The association adjourned after the banquet until the annual gathering to be held in January, 1941.

Adams county commissioners at a regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon gave tentative approval to the Adams county budget for 1940 as prepared by Chief Clerk C. Arthur Brame and directed that it be held at the court house for public inspection for a 30-day period after which final action will be taken.

Based on a continued tax rate of 4½ mills for general county purposes, the budget follows fairly closely the 1939 budget and makes provision for estimated receipts and expenditures of $233,258.

On Thursday when the commissioners meet at the Adams County Institution board, Mr. Brame will submit a proposed budget for the county institution district for tentative approval. It is reported to be drawn on the basis of a three-mill tax rate for institution district purposes. The 1939 rate for the institution district was three mills.

Prospects of Same Tax Rate

If both budgets are adopted finally after a 30-day inspection period, the county's tax rate will remain the same in 1940 as it was last year.

The commissioners estimate that they will collect $52,402 from the real estate levy for general county purposes this year and about $3,109 from the levy on occupational assessments. The estimated current revenue which includes an expected $32,500 from delinquent taxes is set at $151,412.

The budget estimates that $4,500 will be collected for the county through the courts by fines and costs, while the commissioners anticipate payments of $38,000 from the state in liquid fuel tax monies. That estimate is $3,000 above the sum anticipated in 1939 because actual payments have shown an upturn in revenue from that source.

Complete figures on 1939 expenditures are not yet available and will not be known exactly until the county auditors finish their work.

The cash balance with which the county opened 1940 is given at $84,346, approximately $5,500 above the balance at the opening of 1939.

$20,000 for Bridges

Under estimated expenditures most appropriations follow closely the 1939 amounts. Expecting to paint the exterior of the court house and do other repair work there this year, the commissioners added $1,000 to the sum allowed for that work last year.

The 1940 budget sets aside $20,000 for bridge building this year and an equal sum for land damages involved in bridge or road building. Both sums are slightly above the 1939 figures.

A total of $9,000 is earmarked for the retirement of bonds that will mature this year.

The commissioners have designated a total of $35,196 for the contingency fund, an increase of nearly $11,000 over the 1939 sum. All other appropriations vary only slightly or not at all from 1939 figures.

150 Attend Local President's Party

Approximately 150 persons attended the President's birthday party held Tuesday evening in the Hotel Gettysburg. Music and entertainment was furnished by Bud Codori's orchestra.

A final accounting of the money received from the affair has not been made, but members of the committee in charge said today that the Crippled Children's society of Adams county will receive a larger sum this year as its share of the proceeds than in any previous year the parties were held.

The Camp Fire Girls of Gettysburg collected $16 in their "March of Dimes" solicitation recently for the aid of crippled children in the nation.

ASKS BUSINESS TO STUDY STATE SCHOOL COSTS

Harrisburg, Jan. 31 (AP)—A bank president today posed a series of questions regarding costs of education in Pennsylvania—a $200,000, 100-a-year business—and left organized businessmen to find the answers.

Charles F. Zimmerman, head of the First National Bank of Huntingdon and chairman of the state Chamber of Commerce's special committee on school administration and finance, raised the questions in a resume of school problems up for discussion at the committee's first meeting.

He quoted the state education association's survey committee as describing education as "an investment" and a business stimulant, and commented:

"Assuming these statements to be true, it is equally important, however, to give serious consideration to the general problem of the mounting costs in education. The question immediately arises, can this expenditure be justified?"

Noting that the state education association "is sponsoring a program which would cost many additional millions of dollars," Zimmerman asked:

"Can additional expenditures for public school purposes be justified at this time under prevailing conditions?"

Zimmerman turned to a discussion of Pennsylvania's 2,582 school districts—many without a school—and 13,524 directors, and raised the question:

"Is it possible for so many boards, with the great number of members, who are constantly changing, to work as a unit—as the state school organization—and move forward efficiently to provide the objective of giving equal advantages and educational opportunities to all children of the state?"

The banker analyzed school tax problems and asked "what, if anything, can be done to equalize the assessment of real property for local tax purposes x x x To reduce the local property tax? x x x To reduce the cost of tax collection?"

He commented other groups have studied these problems but that the state chamber feels "such a study should also be made by an organization of businessmen, who after all, are largely responsible for the payment of the costs of the public schools of this state."

speech was scanned for a hint of Germany's immediate plans in war-torn Europe.

Main attention was devoted to his declaration that "France and England will get the fight they asked for" though the speaker gave no more definite indication of his intentions in a sports palace speech Tuesday night celebrating the anniversary of his rise to power.

Though his words were regarded primarily as a pep-talk for the German people, his first since November 8, Hitler reiterated Germany's "close friendship" with Italy and declared that the reich's Russian ties gave her protection on the east.

Italy received his speech without comment and British spokesmen said it was evident that Hitler had given up hope of separating the British-French allies.

Hitler's verbal attack on the allies accompanied further assaults by Nazi planes on shipping off Britain's east coast.

The Germans claimed a total of 18 vessels had been sunk in two days of raids and that only one German plane was lost.

Plane Re-Capture City

From the Finnish-Russian war front, unofficial reports said the Finns had re-captured the important city of Pitkanen, 20 miles from the Soviet frontier north of Lake Ladoga, focus of intense fighting for more than a week.

Five Soviet warplanes were said to have been shot down, and nine tanks destroyed.

Finland's civil air defense chief declared that 300 Russian planes have been downed and 400 Finnish civilians killed in air raids since the war started November 30.

93,000 KILLED DURING 1939 BY ACCIDENTS

Chicago, Jan. 31 (AP)—Accidents killed 93,000 persons in the United States in 1939. Injured 8,800,000 and cost an estimated $3,300,000,000, the National Safety council reported today.

Those figures, however, represented a saving of about 800 lives and a one per cent reduction from the 1938 toll. The 1939 accident rate of 71 deaths per 100,000 population was the lowest since 1900 with two exceptions—1921 and 1922.

Leading the list were motor vehicle accidents, which accounted for 32,800 deaths, 18 more than in 1938, and caused approximately 1,150,000 non-fatal injuries. Economic losses were estimated at $1,500,000,000.

Ranking second were accidents in the home. They killed 32,000 persons in 1939, two per cent more than in 1938; injured 4,700,000 and cost an estimated $600,000,000. Falls were blamed for 17,000 of the home deaths.

Occupational deaths decreased three per cent to 16,000 and the miscellaneous accident toll decreased six per cent to 15,000.

The council said that although traffic deaths were, virtually the same as in 1938, travel increased six per cent last year and four per cent more vehicles were on the road. Consequently, it concluded the death rate, based on motor vehicle mileage, dropped more than five per cent to an all time low of 12.2 deaths per 100,000,000 miles.

Fatal falls in homes, in public places and at work increased one per cent to 27,000, deaths from burns increased eight per cent to 8,000 and drownings decreased 11 per cent to 6,700.

In the traffic death classification, 26 states reported reductions. Utah led the list with a 24 per cent drop, followed by New Hampshire with 18 per cent and Georgia with 14 per cent. North Dakota, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Kansas had decreases of 10 per cent or more.

The North Atlantic states, with a three-per cent reduction, had the best regional record.

Temperature Varies 26 Degrees Within Few Miles

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31 (AP)—A freak cold wave in western Pennsylvania today pushed temperatures as low as 21 degrees below zero while at points only a few miles distant the mercury was 26 degrees higher.

The lowest reading was recorded at McKinley Station near Kane. Ormsby Station a few miles away reported five above; Kane, seven below; Lewis Run Station 14 below and the Spring Water company works on the outskirts of Kane, 18 below.

Generally the cold wave clung to the mountainous areas, with the river valleys escaping its brunt. Ridgway and Somerset in the mountains reported 10 below temperatures while in the lower Monongahela valley the temperatures generally were 10 to 15 above. At Pittsburgh, the mercury sank to nine degrees and frost coated bushes and roof tops with a white blanket.

POWER "FAMINE"

Tokyo, Jan. 31 (AP)—Japan's self-imposed electric power "famine" reached a critical stage today, as manufacturers stood to lose millions of dollars and workers expressed bewilderment over enforced idleness. Domet, Japanese news agency, said the commerce ministry would announce Thursday a 30 per cent restriction on power consumption in the Osaka and Kobe regions and a 35 per cent cut in Tokyo and Yokohama for a 10-day period starting February 10.

WRITER THINKS REAL CONFLICT IS APPROACHING

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

There is considerable speculation as to whether special meaning is to be attached to the wide-spread Nazi air raids on allied shipping during the past two days, but there are at least a couple of good non-conflicting answers—and one of them means there's blood on Europe's moon.

First off, the bombings presumably were intended in part as a fitting martial accompaniment for Herr Hitler's re-appearance Tuesday night on the speaker's rostrum. This came after a remarkable silence which has lasted since he all but lost his life in the Munich beer hall explosion of November 3.

Tuesday's occasion was the seventh anniversary of the fuhrer's ascent to the chancellorship. It also was the fitting hour for him to reply to the oratorical blasts of French Premier Daladier, British First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill, and other allied ministers who have entered the lists in the battle of words.

Another Reason for Raids

So, with claims of devastating German air raids as a background, Herr Hitler made his speech. Like both other belligerents he ended with "hail victory."

With the thumping of chests and the battle-cries of the trio stilled for the moment, another wholly logical reason for the Nazi raids appears. Premier Daladier may have called the turn Monday night when he warned France in a speech that total war with Germany "cannot be long in breaking." He added that it would be "criminal" to underestimate Germany's formidable war strength.

Those raids to my mind represented a "business double." England herself has been wondering whether a lightning war against shipping is at hand.

Obviously the Nazis weren't major affairs, though the Germans certainly were out to sink as many ships as possible with the score or so of planes used.

Whatever way one looks at it these raids—the most ambitious and perhaps destructive yet aimed at shipping—would seem to give further indication that the Germans are getting tuned up for a wholesale air offensive against England as soon as the good weather comes.

Results Unknown

The idea is that great fleets of airplanes, hundreds strong, would be unleashed to pour bombs from the sky. These ships of death would comb a country or shipping zone systematically until in theory everything had been destroyed.

Nobody knows how effective the new air warfare may be, because the early time it has been used on a considerable scale was in Poland. It was devastating in that bloody blitzkrieg. However, the Polish defense against air raids was weak, whereas the allies both claim to be all set to meet Berlin's threatened "blood bath."

Should the Nazi chief fly his air armada against England it will represent one of the greatest war gambles of all time. It may bring him great success or terrible ruin within the first few hours. Should the British defense destroy his fleet, it likely would mean the end of the war.

BLAMES LABOR'S SPLIT FOR BOARD'S TROUBLES

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—J. Warren Madden, chairman of the labor board, testified today that the "split in the labor movement" had placed his federal agency in the "ungracious position of being an umpire in a civil war within the labor movement."

He told the special house committee investigating the labor relations act and its administration that this was one of several developments that had impeded smooth and efficient solution of labor troubles.

Previously he had testified that the act might have been administered effectively from the start had not the National Association of Manufacturers put employers in a "red-hot" mood.

The break between the A.F.L. and C.I.O. groups, Madden said, "caused enormous jealousy" and "presented a lot of problems for the board."

FIVE INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD

Indianapolis, Jan. 31 (AP)—Arthur V. Brown, president of two Indianapolis banks, and four other persons were indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government through diversion of W.P.A. labor.

The others indicted were Karl F. Kortepeter, former Marion county (Indianapolis) W.P.A. director; Miss Elizabeth C. Claypool; Arthur P. Elkhoff, real estate operator, and Charles E. Jefferson, former member of the Marion county food control board.

Brown, Kortepeter and Miss Claypool were named in one indictment and Elkhoff, Jefferson and Kortepeter in a second.

ASKS BUSINESS TO STUDY STATE SCHOOL COSTS

Harrisburg, Jan. 31 (AP)—A bank president today posed a series of questions regarding costs of education in Pennsylvania—a $200,000,000-a-year business—and left organized businessmen to find the answers.

Charles F. Zimmerman, head of the First National Bank of Huntington and chairman of the state Chamber of Commerce's special committee on school administration and finance, raised the questions in a resume of school problems up for discussion at the committee's first meeting.

He quoted the state education association's survey committee as describing education as "an investment" and a business stimulant, and commented:

"Assuming these statements to be true, it is equally important, however, to give serious consideration to the general problem of the mounting costs in education. The question immediately arises, can this expenditure be justified?"

Noting that the state education association "is sponsoring a program which would cost many additional millions of dollars," Zimmerman asked:

"Can additional expenditures for public school purposes be justified at this time under prevailing conditions?"

Zimmerman turned to a discussion of Pennsylvania's 2,582 school districts—many without a school—and 13,524 directors, and raised the question:

"Is it possible for so many boards, with the great number of members, who are constantly changing, to work as a unit—as the state school organization—and move forward efficiently to provide the objective of giving equal advantages and educational opportunities to all children of the state?"

The banker analyzed school tax problems and asked "what, if anything, can be done to equalize the assessment of real property for local tax purposes x x x To reduce the local property tax? x x x To reduce the cost of tax collection?"

He commented other groups have studied these problems but that the state chamber feels "such a study should also be made by an organization of businessmen who after all, are largely responsible for the payment of the costs of the public schools of this state."

Main attention was devoted to his declaration that "France and England will set the fight they asked for," though the fuhrer gave no more definite indication of his intentions in a sports palace speech Tuesday night celebrating the anniversary of his rise to power.

Though his words were regarded primarily as a pep-talk for the German people, his first since November 8, Hitler reiterated Germany's "close friendship" with Italy and declared that the reich's Russian ties gave her protection on the east.

Italy received his speech without comment and British spokesmen said it was evident that Hitler had given up hope of separating the British-French allies.

Hitler's verbal attack on the allies accompanied further assaults by Nazi planes on shipping off Britain's east coast.

The Germans claimed a total of 18 vessels had been sunk in two days of raids and that only one German plane was lost.

From the Finnish-Russian war front unofficial reports said the Finns had re-captured the important city of Pitkananta, 20 miles from the Soviet frontier north of Lake Ladoga, focus of intense fighting for more than a week.

Five Soviet warplanes were said to have been shot down, and nine tanks destroyed.

Finland's civil air defense chief declared that 300 Russian planes have been downed and 400 Finnish civilians killed in air raids since the war started November 30.

The Polish government-in-exile published a White Paper in Paris asserting that 18,000 persons had been executed by Germany since occupation of the western half of Poland, and accused Germany of forcing thousands to migrate to the interior in boxcars during sub-zero cold.

93,000 KILLED DURING 1939 BY ACCIDENTS

Chicago, Jan. 31 (AP)—Accidents killed 93,000 persons in the United States in 1939, injured 8,800,000 and cost an estimated $3,300,000,000, the National Safety council reported today.

Those figures, however, represented a saving of about 500 lives and a one per cent reduction from the 1938 toll. The 1939 accident rate of 71 deaths per 100,000 population was the lowest since 1900 with two exceptions—1921 and 1922.

Leading the list were motor vehicle accidents, which accounted for 32,600 deaths, 18 more than in 1938, and caused approximately 1,150,000 non-fatal injuries. Economic losses were estimated at $1,500,000,000.

Ranking second were accidents in the home. They killed 32,000 persons in 1939, two per cent more than in 1938, injured 4,700,000 and cost an estimated $600,000,000. Falls were blamed for 17,000 of the home deaths.

Occupational deaths decreased three per cent to 16,000 and the miscellaneous accident toll decreased six per cent to 15,000.

The council said that although traffic deaths were virtually the same as in 1938, travel increased six per cent last year and four per cent more vehicles were on the road. Consequently, it concluded the death rate, based on motor vehicle mileage, dropped more than five per cent to an all time low of 12.2 deaths per 100,000,000 miles.

Fatal falls in homes, in public places and at work increased one per cent to 27,000, deaths from burns increased eight per cent to 8,000 and drownings decreased 11 per cent to 6,700.

In the traffic death classification, 26 states reported reductions. Utah led the list with a 24 per cent drop, followed by New Hampshire with 18 per cent and Georgia with 14 per cent. North Dakota, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Kansas had decreases of 10 per cent or more.

The North Atlantic states, with a three per cent reduction, had the best regional record.

Temperature Varies 26 Degrees Within Few Miles

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31 (AP)—A freak cold wave in western Pennsylvania today pushed temperatures as low as 21 degrees below zero while at points only a few miles distant the mercury was 26 degrees higher.

The lowest reading was recorded at McKinley Station near Kane. Ormsby Station a few miles away reported five above; Kane, seven below; Lewis Run Station 14 below and the Spring Water company works on the outskirts of Kane, 18 below.

Generally the cold wave clung to the mountainous areas, with the river valleys escaping its brunt. Ridgway and Somerset in the mountains reported 10 below temperatures while in the lower Monongahela valley the temperatures generally were 10 to 15 above. At Pittsburgh, the mercury sank to nine degrees and frost coated bushes and roof tops with a white blanket.

POWER "FAMINE"

Tokyo, Jan. 31 (AP)—Japan's self-imposed electric power "famine" reached a critical stage today, as manufacturers stood to lose millions of dollars and workers expressed bewilderment over enforced idleness. The partial shutdown began Tuesday for a proposed 14-hour period was expected to continue in the industrialized areas. Dojici, Japanese news agency, said the commerce ministry would announce Thursday a 30 per cent restriction on power consumption in the Osaka and Kobe regions and a 35 per cent cut in Tokyo and Yokohama for a 10-day period starting February 10.

EXPLOSION KILLS 2

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 31 (AP)—Five-month-old Helen Marie Vislosky died today of burns inflicted by an explosion of a jug of gasoline that killed her mother, Mrs. Helen Vislosky, 24, and injured Mrs. Vislosky's brother-in-law, Andrew Vislosky, 16, at their home in Ashcroft, Tuesday.

The idea is that great fleets of airplanes, hundreds strong, would be unleashed to pour bombs from the sky. These ships of death would comb a country or shipping zone systematically until in theory everything had been destroyed.

Nobody knows how effective the new air warfare may be, because the only time it has been used on a considerable scale was in Poland. It was devastating in that bloody blitzkrieg. However, the Polish defense against air raids was weak, whereas the allies both claim to be all set to meet Berlin's threatened "blood bath."

Should the Nazi chief fly his air armada against England it will represent one of the greatest war gambles of all time. It may bring him great success or terrible ruin within the first few hours. Should the British defense destroy his fleet, it likely would mean the end of the war.

BLAMES LABOR'S TROUBLES FOR BOARD'S TROUBLES

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—J. Warren Madden, chairman of the labor board, testified today that the "split in the labor movement" had placed his federal agency in the "ungracious position of being an umpire in a civil war within the labor movement."

He told the special house committee investigating the labor relations act and its administration that this was one of several developments that had impeded smooth and efficient solution of labor troubles.

Previously he had testified that the act might have been administered effectively from the start had not the National Association of Manufacturers put employers in a "rebellious" mood.

The break between the A.F.L. and C.I.O. groups, Madden said, "caused enormous jealousy" and "presented a lot of problems for the board."

FIVE INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY TO DEFAUD

Indianapolis, Jan. 31 (AP)—Arthur V. Brown, president of two Indianapolis banks, and four other persons were indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government through diversion of W.P.A. labor.

The others indicted were Karl F. Kortepeter, former Marion county (Indiana) W.P.A. director; Miss Elizabeth C. Claypool; Arthur F. Eickhoff, real estate operator, and Charles E. Jefferson, former member of the Marion county flood control board.

Brown, Kortepeter and Miss Claypool were named in one indictment and Eickhoff, Jefferson and Kortepeter in a second.

SPRING AND WINTER
She is young and wondrous fair.
He is old and ancient was wise.
They will make a happy pair.
Why must fancy tell such lies?

She can dance on nimble feet.
He at cautious pace must go.
When the spring and winter meet
Why must fancy fool them so?

Age and youth can get along.
Strength with weariness combined.
How can fancy go so wrong.
Be so false and so unkind!

Winter round the hem of spring
Lingers for a day or two,
But it never tries to cling
To her arm the whole year through.

Twins Develop
Same Cavities
In Their Teeth

Philadelphia, Jan. 31 (AP)— Martha and Anna Donnelly, five-year-old identical twins, are so much alike that they develop simultaneous toothaches—in the corresponding teeth.
Or at least they would, two Temple university scientists reported today, if the decay weren't checked in time.
Dr. Ernest F. Ritsert told the Philadelphia County Dental society that he had a co-worker found in a five-month study of the Donnelly sisters that every one of 15 cavities in Martha's mouth is matched by a cavity in the same location in Anna's.
The same carbon-copy characteristics were discovered in two other sets of identical twins, Doctor Ritsert said.

He explained that identical diets
may be a clue to the like number of cavities, but said the evidence indicated heredity is of major importance in explaining the identical locations of the cavities.
"It all leads back, of course, to nutrition and shows the importance of prenatal and post-natal feeding in the oral development of a child."
All of the twins now under study still have their baby teeth. The Temple dental scientists expect to make a periodic check until all are 12 or 14 years old.

Today's Talk
—By George Matthew Adams—
FINGERS OF LOVE AND HOPE
WHO of us cannot recall the time when we took the fingers of our father or mother in our small hands and were led along safely and without fear. How full of confidence was our child heart! How proud to put our all in the hands of one who we knew knew!
Just so are we privileged today to grasp the fingers of love and hope, as we put confidence in a friend, or in the invisible God. When it gets dark in our heart and we feel the night coming on, with the direction ahead blurred and unmarked, it is inspiring to know that we can reach out and grasp these fingers of love and hope that are forever before us, awaiting our reach and our faith.
An invisible leadership of some sort is bound to find us. Perhaps that leadership may take the form of a series of prayers that a mother, long gone, uttered during the silent watches of the night, or perhaps the memory of a love, now voiceless and silent, but a living influence, warm and vital, giving zest to life.
We cannot help but feel, however, that we are forever being strangely led, strangely influenced, and happily cheered on our way by those who have believed in us, and who look to us to demonstrate our worth, and reward their confidence.
There have been those — and they are legion! — who have put themselves into fingers of love and hope and gone out into the world in the shape of books, sayings, poems, and various manifestations. How many — what a multitude — have grasped at those fingers, and been led into many an undiscovered country — and many have been led into the innermost chambers of their own lives, that they might be self-discovered!
Shakespeare speaks of the little candle that throws its beams for such a long distance in a dark world. Fingers of love and hope reach out, like that.

Blood Runs Cold
—BY ANN DEMAREST—
YESTERDAY: Kimball Donald killing Joan Kent. Mrs. MacDonald admits disagreeing with her daughter over Lathrop. Christine's spirits lighten, now that Dirk is on the scene.
Chapter 14
"Violent Person"
"How did you happen to move
here, anyway?" Dirk asked me.
I gave him a five-minute talk on the advertisement in the paper, viewing the apartment, carefully omitting any mention of Toby, and finally moving in and his predicaments.
"Now isn't that just like you to be sitting on the sidewalk in the middle of the winter?"
I raised an eyebrow. "You seem to have a low notion, Mr. Kolff, about me and my doings."
"I've been hearing about you from Taylor ever since you got believed on boarding school for throwing spit balls."
"It wasn't spit balls," I said firmly. "Anyway, I thought I could trust
Mr. Taylor. Aren't lawyers supposed to keep confidences?"
Dirk smiled. "I worried it out of him. You were a cute little kid."
He changed the subject abruptly. "Do you think Kimball got on well with his niece?"
"I believe so. I think he's grand."
Dirk nodded. "Every mystery must have its romance," he said gravely.
"My secret passion," I said just as gravely, "is the young man who guards the front door."
"Hm. The red-headed one?"
"Yes."
"Chris, I'm disappointed in you, falling for a cop."
"He's not a cop. I made inquiries.
He's an assistant to the Sergeant of the Homicide Squad."
"If you wouldn't mind getting you mind of the boys for a minute, I'd like a little information.
After all, if I'm to keep you out of jail I must know the facts."
I told him all. I was surprised how many things had happened.
When I finished he asked if I had any theories.
"I haven't one," I said very sorrowfully. "Being a spinster doesn't make me a detective. The mystery stories are all wrong."
"You're twenty-eight, I believe."
I shook my head. "Wrong again.
I've reached twenty-nine so fast I've had to hold my hat going around the corners."
"How time flies."
"What I want to know, Mr.
Kolff, is whether my good name is still under a cloud." And I told him what I heard the Sergeant say when I was going down the stairs.
"You don't look too stable," he said, "but I think my presence has reassured him a little. Taylor told me to take care of you while he was away, but I didn't realize what a violent person you are."
"You aren't taking it seriously enough to be a help to anyone."
"I'll try to protect you from red-headed detectives, at any rate," he said.
Taste In Girls
There are a couple of things I've noticed, but doubtless, as everyone says, they have no bearing on the case.
He leaned back in the chair.
"Shoot."
"I think the girl's mother knows more than she's admitted, for one thing."
"You're right there," he agreed quickly.
And then I told him about the girls in the front apartment, "Mary Ann Rogers seems quite nice," I said when I finished.
He sat up. "Pretty?"
"Very! But I don't like the other girl. She was up to something last night, but I don't know what it was. But I'm very much afraid, Mr. Kolff, that she wasn't sleeping at home in her own little bed. But after all, I guess that doesn't mean she had anything to do with the murder."
Dirk was interested. "I'd like to have a talk with those girls. I suppose they are in."

Rogers, the pretty red-haired girl," Dirk said. "She said she got back about twenty past twelve."
The Sergeant sat down in a large chair by the window. "Ood, I'm fixed," he said, resting his feet on a footstool. "Now, Kolff, what I can't understand is, when the murderer could so easily have left by the door, why should you think he left by the window. I'm still convinced that he waited until the coast was clear and then left by the stairs. There were no footprints in the snow outside because that fool janitor turned up in time to clean the snow out of the side yard and the path to the garage this morning. If your idea is right, there would have been footprints. But I still stick to the stairs."
Dirk shook his head slowly and the Sergeant scowled.
"He might have opened the window," he went on, "so that the body would get cold and make it hard to determine when the murder was done. As a matter of fact the girl was in her nightgown and ready for bed. Maybe she opened the window herself."
"It was too cold," Dirk said.
"I don't think she'd have opened it until she was ready to get into bed. She'd have hardly been sitting there with the wind blowing over her and only a thin silk dressing gown on over her night-dress."
The Sergeant regarded him sour-ly. "It would take an athlete to get out of the window and swing down to the court."
"I don't think so," Dirk said.
"The only difficulty to my mind was doing it with gloves on. It made it hard to get a grip on that drain pipe."
"Well, we'll try it out. I'll get Norton and maybe I can prove my point," the Sergeant said as he left the room.
Dirk was busy making some calculations on a piece of paper, so I looked around the apartment.
It was a lovely room, perfectly furnished and arranged. You could get a pretty clear idea of the girl from her things: the dull blue rug, the chintz-covered chairs, a bowl of moss roses, now wilted with the cold, on the drop-leaf table and on the low coffee
table in front of the couch a collection of funny little carved wooden dogs. Poking out from a low footstool were a pair of small brown suede pumps, their round toes scuffed, and somehow pathetic.

Farm Calendar
Timely Reminders for Adams County
Farmers From State College Specialists.
Keep bulbs at low temperatures for at least eight weeks to allow for the development of strong root systems, advise flower specialists. Then place them in a room having a temperature of about 65 degrees F.
Improving Milk Color
Milk will have better color in winter if feeds high in carotene are fed, say dairy specialists. These include bright green alfalfa, clover or soybean hay; grass silages; carrots;
and alfalfa leaf meal.
Use Adequate Lighting Studies show that the time for darning chores in adequately lighted barns is reduced 10 to 25 per cent, report agricultural engineers. Good lighting is also conducive to greater cleanliness and makes the barn a more cheerful place in which to work.
Avoid Bacterial Ring Rot
The only known method of control of this new potato disease is by the use of disease-free seed, claim plant pathologists. It has been found that an infection of only two per cent in the seed stock may result in as much as 25 per cent infection in the crop produced.
Keep Birds Eating
Egg profits depend on production during the winter. Watching the grain and mash consumption to see that the birds consume sufficient amounts of feed to meet the requirements for high production is important, remind poultry extension specialists. Mash contains more of the materials required for egg production.
Watch Your Rope
A rope must be kept dry if it is to have a long life of usefulness, declare specialists at Penn State. Alternate wet and dry is extremely detrimental to the rope fibers.
The U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis was established in 1845.

CARE OF CLOTHING
If clothing is hung up carefully, you will save a lot of pressing. Select your hangers with care. For most garments, the usual wire holder is satisfactory, but thin, dainty narrowly need wider hangers, covered with felt or velvet to prevent tearing. To keep sheer clothes from slipping off, stick thumb tacks two inches from each end of a wooden or covered hanger. Often "best" dresses should be hung by straps attached to the waist band or the shoulders. Fasten the straps to covered hangers with small pins. Give each garment plenty of closet space and look in often to see that none falls down.
INSTRUCTOR DIES
Philadelphia, Jan. 31 (AP)—Dr.
Thomas E. Shea, instructor at Jerrison medical college, died Tuesday in Jefferson hospital of a heart attack. He was 61. Doctor Shea was instructor of brain anatomy and neurology.
LIKE PASTRY
Philadelphia, Jan. 31 (AP)—Three

holdup men with a fancy for pastry held up Max Wolov in his delicatessen Tuesday night. They started off with the contents of the cash register, but a moment later one of the trio returned to pick up the pie
he had originally ordered.
NOT IN THE ICE BOX
Always store wine in a uniformly cool place—not the refrigerator. Fill wine glasses two thirds full when serving it.

SPRING AND WINTER
She is young and wondrous fair,
He is old and once was wise.
They will make a happy pair.
Why must fancy tell such lies?

She can dance on nimble feet,
He at cautious pace must go.
When the spring and winter meet
Why must fancy fool them so?

Age and youth can get along,
Strength with weariness combined,
How can fancy go so wrong,
Be so false and so unkind?

Winter round the hem of spring
Lingers for a day or two,
But it never tries to cling
To her arm the whole year through.

Twins Develop Same Cavities In Their Teeth

Philadelphia, Jan. 31 (AP)—Martha and Anna Donnelly, five-year-old identical twins, are so much alike that they develop simultaneous toothaches — in the corresponding tooth.

Or at least they would, two Temple university scientists reported today, if the decay weren't checked in time.

Dr. Ernest F. Ritsert told the Philadelphia County Dental society that he and a co-worker found in a five-month study of the Donnelly sisters that every one of 15 cavities in Martha's mouth is matched by a cavity in the same location in Anna's.

The same carbon-copy characteristics were discovered in two other sets of identical twins, Doctor Ritsert said.

He explained that identical diets may be a clue to the like number of cavities, but said the evidence indicated heredity is of major importance in explaining the identical locations of the cavities.

"It all leads back, of course, to nutrition and shows the importance of prenatal and post-natal feeding in the oral development of a child."

All of the twins now under study still have their baby teeth. The Temple dental scientists expect to make a periodic check until all are 12 or 14 years old.

Today's Talk

WHO of us cannot recall the time when we took the fingers of our father or mother in our small hands and were led along safely and without fear. How full of confidence was our child heart! How proud to put our all in the hands of one who we knew knew!

Just so are we privileged today to grasp the fingers of love and hope, as we put confidence in a friend, or in the invisible God. When it gets dark in our heart and we feel the night coming on, with the direction ahead blurred and unmarked, it is inspiring to know that we can reach out and grasp these fingers of love and hope that are forever before us, awaiting our reach and our faith.

An invisible leadership of some sort is bound to find us. Perhaps that leadership may take the form of a series of prayers that a mother, long gone, uttered during the silent watches of the night, or perhaps the memory of a love, now voiceless and silent, but a living influence, warm and vital, giving zest to life.

We cannot help but feel, however, that we are forever being strangely led, strangely influenced, and happily cheered on our way by those who have believed in us, and who look to us to demonstrate our worth, and reward their confidence.

There have been those — and they are legion! — who have put themselves into fingers of love and hope and gone out into the world in the shape of books, sayings, poems, and various manifestations. How many — what a multitude — have grasped at those fingers, and been led into many an undiscovered country — and many have been led into the innermost chambers of their own lives, that they might be self-discovered!

Shakespeare speaks of the little candle that throws its beams for such a long distance in a dark world. Fingers of love and hope reach out, like that.

Blood Runs Cold

BY ANN DEMAREST

YESTERDAY: Kimball denies killing Joan Kent. Mrs. MacDonald admits disagreeing with her daughter over Lathrop. Christine's spirits lighten, now that Dirk is on the scene.

Chapter 14

'Violent Person'

"How did you happen to move here, anyway?" Dirk asked me.

I gave him a five-minute talk on the advertisement in the paper, viewing the apartment, carefully omitting any mention of Toby, and finally moving in and its predicaments.

"Now isn't that just like you to be sitting on the sidewalk in the middle of the winter?"

I raised an eyebrow. "You seem to have a low notion, Mr. Kolff, about me and my doings."

"I've been hearing about you from Taylor ever since you got removed from boarding school for throwing spit balls."

"It wasn't spit balls," I said firmly. "Anyway, I thought I could trust Mr. Taylor. Aren't lawyers supposed to keep confidences?"

Dirk smiled. "I worried it out of him. You were a cute little kid."

He changed the subject abruptly. "Do you think Kimball got on well with his niece?"

"I believe so. I think he's grand." Dirk nodded. "Every mystery must have its romance," he said gravely.

"My secret passion," I said just as gravely, "is the young man who guards the front door."

"Hm. The red-headed one?"

"Yes."

"Chris, I'm disappointed in you, falling for a cop."

"He's not a cop. I made inquiries. He's an assistant to the Sergeant of the Homicide Squad."

"If you wouldn't mind getting your mind of the boys for a minute, I'd like a little information. After all, if I'm to keep you out of jail I must know the facts."

I told him all I was surprised how many things had happened. When I finished he asked if I had any theories.

"I haven't one," I said very sorrowfully. "Being a spinster doesn't make me a detective. The mystery stories are all wrong."

"You're twenty eight, I believe."

I shook my head. "Wrong again. I've reached twenty-nine so fast I've had to hold my hat going around the corners."

"How time flies."

"What I want to know, Mr. Kolff, is whether my good name is still under a cloud." And I told him what I heard the Sergeant say when I was going down the stairs.

"You don't look too stable," he said, "but I think my presence has reassured him a little. Taylor told me to take care of you while he was away, but I didn't realize what a violent person you are."

"You aren't taking it seriously enough to be a help to anyone."

"I'll try to protect you from red-headed detectives, at any rate," he said.

Taste In Girls

"There are a couple of things I've noticed, but doubtless, as everyone says, they have no bearing on the case."

He leaned back in the chair. "Shoot."

"I think the girl's mother knows more than she's admitted, for one thing."

"You're right there," he agreed quickly.

And then I told him about the girls in the front apartment. "Mary Ann Rogers seems quite nice," I said when I finished.

He sat up. "Pretty?"

"Very! But I don't like the other girl. She was up to something last night, but I don't know what it was. But I'm very much afraid, Mr. Kolff, that she wasn't sleeping at home in her own little bed. But after all, I guess that doesn't mean she had anything to do with the murder."

Dirk was interested. "I'd like to have a talk with those girls. I suppose they are in."

I nodded. "None of us in supposed to leave."

"Anything else?"

"That's all, except the lighter."

I told him about that, then showed him my list of questions on the drawing board. He seemed more interested in the list than the missing lighter.

"If I were you," he said thoughtfully, "I'd leave the questions on the board just as they are in full view of anyone who might come in the room. It's just a chance that there is someone who's interested enough to keep a close watch on everything in the house."

"Young man," I said, "I'm no sissy, but I don't want people skulking around my apartment. That man last night nearly scared the daylight out of me."

Dirk shouted with laughter. "According to Mr. Kimball, the Sergeant is certain it was one of your boy friends. I've been in on a good many cases, but never before have I seen a respectable girl accused of such varied and lurid deeds. Lock your door at night by all means, but why not leave it ajar or at least unlocked, during the day? Unless you have valuables you're afraid might be stolen," he added with a twinkle.

"If I had any valuables," I said, "I wouldn't be living in this neighborhood. Painting water colors isn't as lucrative as it used to be. I'll leave the door unlocked, but I'm glad Taylor fixed up my will before he left."

"Don't be morbid."

"It's because I haven't had any lunch," I said sadly. "They're pretty strict about letting me out of the house."

"My darling!" He got up. "I'm sure," he said as he poked through his overcoat pockets, "that I've got something here for you."

"Chocolate cake maybe, or chicken sandwiches?" I said hopefully.

He beamed as his hand struck something. He threw me a package. It was throat lozenges. I threw them back.

"Sit tight," he said. "I'll run in and talk to the girls in the front apartment, and then we'll feed you lavishly." He opened the door. "By the way, which one was I to fall for?"

"If you have any taste at all in girls or like a very interesting shade of red hair, you'll know which one."

Through The Window

When Dirk finally did come back to my room it was after five and dark outside. I was sitting by the window, feeling at low ebb, with only the candle for light. I'd put the spare bulb in the bathroom to bathe and dress by, though I didn't have the energy to do anything about it. Dirk said he'd been up to see Richard McDonald, but before he had time to come in and tell me about it the Sergeant came upstairs and Dirk followed him to Joan Kent's apartment.

"All he can do is throw me out," he said cheerfully as he left.

But he wasn't thrown out, and in a couple of minutes he called me in. The Sergeant was leaning at a perilous angle out of the window. He motioned to Dirk to close the door to the hall and then turned to me.

"Think carefully now," he said, very much excited. "After you went back to your own apartment last night, did you hear the door of this room, or any door, being opened or closed?"

"No, I didn't. I'm sure I would have heard it, too, because I stood inside of my own door trying to lock it."

"Did you hear anyone in the hall directly after that?"

"Not for about twenty minutes. Then I heard someone come upstairs. It must have been the man who came into my apartment. After he left I heard the quarrelling, and after that someone else came up from the first floor."

"That must have been Miss

Rogers, the pretty red-haired girl," Dirk said. "She said she got back about twenty past twelve."

The Sergeant sat down in a large chair by the window. "God, I'm tired," he said, resting his feet on a footstool. "Now, Kolff, what I can't understand is, when the murderer could so easily have left by the door, why should you think he left by the window. I'm still convinced that he waited until the coast was clear and then left by the stairs. There were no footprints in the snow outside, because that fool janitor turned up in time to clean the snow out of the side yard and the path to the garage this morning. If your idea is right, there would have been footprints. But I still stick to the stairs."

Dirk shook his head slowly and the Sergeant scowled.

"He might have opened the window," he went on, "so that the body would get cold and make it hard to determine when the murder was done. As a matter of fact the girl was in her nightgown and ready for bed. Maybe she opened the window herself."

"It was too cold," Dirk said. "I don't think she'd have opened it until she was ready to get into bed. She'd have hardly been sitting there with the wind blowing over her and only a thin silk dressing gown on over her nightdress."

The Sergeant regarded him sourly. "It would take an athlete to get out of the window and swing down to the court."

"I don't think so," Dirk said. "The only difficulty to my mind was doing it with gloves on. It made it hard to get a grip on that drain pipe."

"Well, we'll try it out. I'll get Norton and maybe I can prove my point," the Sergeant said as he left the room.

Dirk was busy making some calculations on a piece of paper, so I looked around the apartment. It was a lovely room, perfectly furnished and arranged. You could get a pretty clear idea of the girl from her things; the dull blue rug, the chintz-covered chairs, a bowl of moss roses, now wilted with the cold, on the drop-leaf table and on the low coffee table in front of the couch a collection of funny little carved wooden dogs. Poking out from a low footstool were a pair of small brown suede pumps, their round toes scuffed, and somehow pathetic.

Timely Reminders for Adams County Farmers From State College Specialists.

Keep bulbs at low temperatures for at least eight weeks to allow for the development of strong root systems, advise flower specialists. Then place them in a room having a temperature of about 65 degrees F.

Improving Milk Color

Milk will have better color in winter if feeds high in carotene are fed, say dairy specialists. These include bright green alfalfa, clover or soybean hay; grass silages; carrots; and alfalfa leaf meal.

Use Adequate Lighting

Studies show that the time for doing chores in adequately lighted barns is reduced 10 to 25 per cent, report agricultural engineers. Good lighting is also conducive to greater cleanliness and makes the barn a more cheerful place in which to work.

Avoid Bacterial Ring Rot

The only known method of control of this new potato disease is by the use of disease-free seed, claim plant pathologists. It has been found that an infection of only two per cent in the seed stock may result in as much as 25 per cent infection in the crop produced.

Keep Birds Eating

Egg profits depend on production during the winter. Watching the grain and mash consumption to see that the birds consume sufficient amounts of feed to meet the requirements for high production is important, remind poultry extension specialists. Mash contains more of the materials required for egg production.

Watch Your Rope

A rope must be kept dry if it is to have a long life of usefulness, declare specialists at Penn State. Alternate wetting and drying is extremely detrimental to the rope fibers.

The U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis was established in 1845.

CARE OF CLOTHING

If clothing is hung up carefully, you will save a lot of pressing. Select your hangers with care. For most garments, the usual wire holder is satisfactory, but thin, dainty garments need wider hangers, covered with felt or velvet to prevent tearing. To keep sheer clothes from slipping off, stick thumb tacks two inches from each end of a wooden or covered hanger. Often "best" dresses should be hung by straps attached to the waist band or the shoulders. Fasten the straps to covered hangers with small pins. Give each garment plenty of closet space and look in often to see that none falls down.

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of my husband Charles Blecker who departed this life January 31 1939. Today bring's back sad memory. Of one we tried to rest. The silent room the empty bed. And the lonely vacant chair. Tenderly I missed and cared for him. Dying in vain to restore his health. Long he struggled against distress. That baffled kill and cure. Long he lingered racked with pain. And suffering had to bear. What grief and pain he suffered here. None of us will ever know. For Jesus took him home with him. Where tears will never flow. By his wife, Susan Blecker.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my husband, Charles Biesecker, who departed this life January 31, 1939. Today brings back and memories. Of one we laid to rest. The silent room the empty bed. And the lonely vacant chair.

Tenderly I nursed and cared for him; Trying in vain to restore his health. Long he struggled against disease. That baffled skill and cure.

Long he lingered, racked with pain, And suffering hard to bear. What grief and pain he suffered here!

None of us will ever know.

For Jesus took him home, with him. Where tears will never flow.

By his wife, Susan Biesecker.

Groundhog Undaunted by Claims of Rival Prophets

Quarryville, Pa., Jan. 31 (AP)—Undaunted by the claims of scoffers and rival prophets, the faithful of this southern Pennsylvania countryside are awaiting Friday's dawn to pledge new faith in the long range weather forecasting of the groundhog.

That's the big day—each February 2—when members of Slumbering Groundhog lodge don top hats and nightshirts to march into the swamp hollow country, learn the woodchuck's prediction, then hasten home to feast and spread the news. In Quarryville, if nowhere else, Groundhog Day is a holiday—with business closed.

Turning lyric in its call to members, the lodge disposed of such scoffers as men of science and forecasters of the government weather bureau with the note: "Astronomers come and astrologers go and scientists cover the earth like snow, while people with titles and many degrees are as thick and as plenty as leaves on the trees and folk who are rated as learned and wise keep writing and talking and buzzing like flies."

Their inventions of gadgets and special machines are varied and wondrous and common as beans. But combining their efforts in one mighty chance—they can't tell the weather six weeks in advance.

The lodge members contend they can—by observing whether a proper groundhog sees his shadow February 2 at the end of his winter nap. If

Borah's Estate Is Valued at $200,000

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—The late Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, left to his widow an estate of approximately $200,000, almost all in government bonds.

This was disclosed today by Mrs. Borah who said the bequest was discovered in the senator's safe deposit box when it was opened by Miss Grace Heilman, his personal secretary for many years, to obtain his will.

The will was written by hand on paper from a senate tablet. It left "everything I have to my beloved Mary."

Mrs. Borah said she had been surprised at the amount despite the fact she knew the senator had three life insurance policies which had been paid up several years ago, as well as funds from the sale of their home in Idaho, fees for speeches and savings from his salary as senator for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Borah was named in the will as the sole executor. There were no witnesses.

Those Pictures by Jack Frost Might Mean Something
ITHACA, N. Y., (AP).—Frost patterns on a window pane have opened a whole new field of scientific conjecture at Cornell University.
Close-up photos, made by Professor Lester W. Sharp, of the botany department, show that the frost nearly always takes the form of some plant life. His pictures suggest that one of the unsolved mysteries of science, the unseen movement of living particles during growth, may be interpreted by watching frost crystals grow.
The photos were taken from inside, directly against the daylight, with a camera equipped with an extension bellows and a 7 1/2 inch objective. Slow lantern slide plates were exposed for a few seconds.
Plants which the pictures resemble include sea weeds under water, palms, fossil growths which have disappeared from the earth except in slabs of rock, ferns and heads of grain. The seaweed-like growths and the whiskered heads of grain commonly start at the lower edge or corner of a pane where the temperature is lowest. They extend gradually upward.
The ice crystals are lifeless. But physicists have shown that a crystal grows under guidance of electrical attractions that pick up neighboring atoms in continuous streams, much as living tissues are supposed to use chemical reactions. They have discovered that some parts of living tissue are crystalline.
One puzzle in life is the spiraling of plants, animals and men. Tissues often build up in spirals, usually favoring one direction more than the other. To this unseen structure has been attributed the fact that a blindfolded man, animal or bird, walks, runs or flies in circles, which usually are spirals.
The frost patterns are only two-dimensional, so they cannot spiral. But the photos show masses of regimented curves which suggest that if the ice were free, it too would spiral as it grows.
"Although there is much that we do not understand about the development of the various frost patterns," Professor Sharp says, "it is evident that they are controlled in some way by temperature, the amount of moisture present and other factors."

PROCEEDS FROM 25,000 PARTIES TO AID CRIPPLES
Washington, Jan. 31 (AP).—Hollywood stars turned the sedate national capital into a carnival town for a few hours Tuesday night as 15,000 persons set a gay pace for the country in celebrating President Roosevelt's 58th birthday anniversary.
For five minutes before midnight, the tumult was stifled while Mr. Roosevelt gave his "heartfelt thanks" to the millions who contributed dimes and dollars to the cause to which the celebration was dedicated—the fight of infantile paralysis.
His voice linking together for a moment all the estimated 25,000 parties in the nation, the President suggested that in future years the annual campaign might be extended "to the care of all crippled children."
"I think I am safe in saying," he added, "that no Italian in the world ever has put a larger volunteer army into the field on any given date than the army of Americans which tonight is taking part in the defense of American childhood."
Stars Visit Parly
While he spoke from the quiet seclusion of the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt left a dinner party of family and intimate friends to venture into the icy streets for a merry-go-round tour of six balls in the district and two in the suburbs.
Cheers welcomed the smiling Mrs. Roosevelt at every stop. Men and women stood on chairs and tables for a glimpse of her and the 12 stage, screen and radio celebrities who also made the rounds, whizzing through the streets behind striding police escorts.
After making 11 public appearances during the evening, the stars and capital social leaders went to a $25 gold plate breakfast at 2:30 a. m.—all except 11-year-old Gloria Jean, the singer.
In New York, the President's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, shed a birthday cake from the kitchen of the renowned Oscar of the Waldorf.
The President's fellow-patients at the Warm Springs (Georgia) foundation ate a special dinner. Washington hospitals served cake from the over-supply at the White House.
The President cut his own cake, which had the customary Roosevelt family limit of 21 candles, at a party attended by some old cronies from the "buff links gang."

KIDS HELP F.D.R.
Pittsburgh, Jan. 31 (AP).—Four-year-old Kenneth Young didn't care if he was too young to go to the President's birthday ball here. He held a "President's birthday party" all of his own. The guests, 15 boys and girls, contributed a dime apiece for the infantile paralysis fund.

COUNTIAN WILL BE HONORED AT CONVENTION
Harrisburg, Jan. 31 (AP).—A Lancaster county school director who has been on his local board for 61 consecutive years will be among a score of veterans honored by the State School Directors' association at its convention Friday and Saturday.
Twenty directors with more than 40 years of continuous service will be honor guests Friday afternoon, with Harvey Brush, 83, of Washington Boro, Lancaster county, as the dean of them all.
Preston O. VanNess, secretary of the association, said he thought Brush had established a national record. The aged director already has served 63 years—two of which were before he started his long service—and he was elected to another six-year term last November.
J. Milton Lutz, of Upper Darby township, Delaware county, with 54 years to his credit, follows Brush. B. C. Hull, of St. Clair township, Westmoreland county, ranks third, with 50 years.
The ceremonies for the ranking directors will be part of a two-day convention which will have its preliminary Thursday with the school Secretaries' association meeting.
"The problem of working wives" will be the topic of Florence Birmingham, president of the Massachusetts Women's Political club, Friday morning.
The directors have sought, unsuccessfully, since the passage of the teacher tenure law to give boards the option of dismissing married teachers.
The veteran directors who have been invited to take the stage Friday afternoon, with Brush, Hull, and Lutz, include M. P. Stoner, Fairfield, Adams county, 46 years; John E. King, Industry township, Beaver county, 45; Doran Green, Bristol borough, Bucks county, 40; S. S. Ebert, Allison township, Clinton county, 46; S. S. Rupp, Shiremans-town, Cumberland county, 45; W. E. Bitner, Shiremansstown, 41; Hugh Malloy, St. Mary's, Elk county, 40; Ellsworth Minor, Jefferson township, Greene county, 41; John W. Levesque, Jersey Shore, Lycoming county, 40; Dr. J. L. A Farmer's Sketch Book
New Purdue Trash Shield

Doing a good job of turning under cornstalks and other long trash is a problem that often requires the extra cost of diskking the field before plowing. The sketch above shows a gang plow equipped with the new Purdue University trash shields that were designed to solve this problem. These shields—in the shape of sheet metal hoods that ride the top of the furrow slice as it leaves the plow share—guide all of the trash to the bottom of the open furrow, no matter how long or heavy it may be.

Marian Martin Pattern
DEMURE, GAY BASQUE FROCK

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9310
Gay... witty... buoyant—the youth in you will eagerly respond to the charms of Marian Martin's pattern 9310. Make it in printed crepe for spring and in colorful cotton for later. The side sections of molding bodice end in low points while the center bodice runs right down into the panelled skirt in one easy piece. Notice how the back waist seam is pointed for a flattering line. You'll like either buttons or bows for trim, with perhaps a lace edging for feminine appeal. A dark-and-light mixture might be striking, with the darker fabric forming the center bodice section, the skirt and the sleeve tabs.
Pattern 9310 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3 1/4 yards, 39 inch fabric and 3/4 yards lace edging.
Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.
Spring—in feminine language—means time for new clothes! Let Marian Martin's new pattern book show you the budget way to style. Need new afternoon or after-dinner frocks? Interested in the "cotton field" or in "prints that bloom in spring"? Just take your "pick!" There are resort clothes, town wear, bridal finery, accessories, home styles and needle-things. Patterns for every age are included. Quick—order your copy! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Those Pictures by Jack Frost Might Mean Something

Ithaca, N. Y., (AP).—Frost patterns on a window pane have opened a whole new field of scientific conjecture at Cornell university.

Close-up photos, made by Professor Lester W. Sharp, of the botany department, show that the frost nearly always takes the form of some plant life. His pictures suggest that one of the unsolved mysteries of science, the unseen movement of living particles during growth, may be interpreted by watching frost crystals grow.

The photos were taken from inside, directly against the daylight, with a camera equipped with an extension bellows and a 7 1/2 inch objective. Slow lantern slide plates were exposed for a few seconds.

Plants which the pictures resemble include sea weeds under water, palms, fossil growths which have disappeared from the earth except in slabs of rock, ferns and heads of grain. The seaweed-like growths and the whiskered heads of grain commonly start at the lower edge or corner of a pane where the temperature is lowest. They extend gradually upward.

The ice crystals are lifeless. But physicists have shown that a crystal grows under guidance of electrical attractions that pick up neighboring atoms in continuous streams, much as living tissues are supposed to use chemical reactions. They have discovered that some parts of living tissue are crystalline.

One puzzle in life is the spiraling of plants, animals and men. Tissues often build up in spirals, usually favoring one direction more than the other. To this unseen structure has been attributed the fact that a blindfolded man, animal or bird, walks, runs or flies in circles, which usually are spirals.

The frost patterns are only two-dimensional, so they cannot spiral. But the photos show masses of regimented curves which suggests that if the ice were free, it too would spiral as it grows.

"Although there is much that we do not understand about the development of the various frost patterns," Professor Sharp says, "it is evident that they are controlled in some way by temperature, the amount of moisture present and other factors."

COUNTY WILL BE HONORED AT CONVENTION

Harrisburg, Jan. 31 (AP).—A Lancaster county school director who has been on his local board for 61 consecutive years will be among a score of veterans honored by the State School Directors' association at its convention Friday and Saturday.

Twenty directors with more than 40 years of continuous service will be honor guests Friday afternoon, with Harvey Brush, 63, of Washington Boro, Lancaster county, as the dean of them all.

Preston O. VanNess, secretary of the association, said he thought Brush had established a national record. The aged director already has served 63 years — two of which were before he started his long service — and he was elected to another six-year term last November.

J. Milton Lutz, of Upper Darby township, Delaware county, with 54 years to his credit, follows Brush. B. C. Hull, of St. Clair township, Westmoreland county, ranks third, with 50 years.

The ceremonies for the ranking directors will be part of a two-day convention which will have its preliminary Thursday with the school secretaries' association meeting.

"The problem of working wives" will be the topic of Florence Birmingham, president of the Massachusetts Women's Political club, Friday morning.

The directors have sought, unsuccessfully, since the passage of the teacher tenure law to give boards the option of dismissing married teachers.

The veteran directors who have been invited to take the stage Friday afternoon, with Brush, Hull, and Lutz, include M. F. Stoner, Fairfield, Adams county, 46 years; John E. King, Industry township, Beaver county, 45; Doran Green, Bristol borough, Bucks county, 40; S. S. Ebert, Allison township, Clinton county, 46; S. S. Rupp, Shiremans-town, Cumberland county, 45; W. E. Bitner, Shiremanstown, 41; Hugh Malloy, St. Mary's, Elk county, 40; Ellsworth Minor, Jefferson township, Greene county, 41; John W. Levegood, Jersey Shore, Lycoming county, 40; Dr. J. L. Mansury, McIntyre township, Lycoming county, 40; D.

A Farmer's Sketch Book

New Purdue Trash Shield

Doing a good job of turning under cornstalks and other long trash is a problem that often requires the extra cost of disking the field before plowing. The sketch above shows a gang plow equipped with the new Purdue University trash shields that were designed to solve this problem. These shields — in the shape of sheet metal hoods that ride the top of the furrow slice as it leaves the plow share — guide all of the trash to the bottom of the open furrow, no matter how long or heavy it may be.

DEMURE, GAY BASQUE FROCK

Gay... witty... buoyant — the youth in you will eagerly respond to the charms of Marian Martin's pattern 9310. Make it in printed crepe for spring and in colorful cotton for later. The side sections of molding bodice end in low points while the center bodice runs right down into the panelled skirt in one easy piece. Notice how the back waist seam is pointed for a flattering line. You'll like either buttons or bows for trim, with perhaps a lacy edging for feminine appeal. A dark-and-light mixture might be striking, with the darker fabric forming the center bodice section, the skirt and the sleeve tabs.

Pattern 9310 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 3 1/2 yards lace edging.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Spring — in feminine language — means time for new clothes! Let Marian Martin's new pattern book show you the budget way to style. Need new afternoon or after-dinner frocks? Interested in the "cotton field" or in "prints that bloom in spring"? Just take your "pick"! There are resort clothes, town wear, bridal finery, accessories, home styles and needle-tips. Patterns for every age are included. Quick — order your copy! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31 (AP).—Four-year-old Kenneth Young didn't care if he was too young to go to the President's birthday ball here. He held a "President's birthday party" all of his own. The guests, 15 boys and girls, contributed a dime apiece for the infantile paralysis fund.
